

ABSTRACT

A process for immobilizing an enzyme includes the steps of selecting a supporting substrate, activating the supporting substrate with an activating molecule to form an activated supporting substrate; adding an enzyme and the activated supporting substrate to an organic solvent to form a mixture and obtaining an immobilized enzyme from the mixture. The organic solvent contains from about 0.01% to about 30% by weight of the organic solvent of water.